A Lady Quotes Schiller
Bonilla Has a Mammoth
—By Arthur Brisbane—

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Aug. 23—This is written on the Union Pacific "Los Angeles Limited, No. 8," on the way from California to New York.

Since last night the train has crossed California from the Pacific, running over Santa Fe tracks to Barstow, then on Union Pacific tracks through Nevada, and on through Utah. When the train arrives at Salt Lake City at 3:15 p. m., this copy will go to the telegraph office, and the writer will stop off to call upon Senator Smoot, whom the Republican party in Utah has wisely recommissioned by acclamation.

WEATHER

Fair tonight and Wednesday; not much change in temperature; gentle, shifting winds, mostly north to east.

High tide 4:44 a. m., 5:01 p. m.

Fortunate Utah is represented by a man whose mind is concentrated on UTAH and THE UNITED STATES.

He does not worry about Equinox, ladies and gentlemen of Cape Town, Czechoslovakians, or the British or French. He believes in Utah, because that means better living for the men and women of Utah and all of the United States.

A beautiful country lies past the window of this car, dark, blue mountains close by, pale gray mountains farther away. The atmosphere, invigorating 5000 feet up, bullies the effects of hot weather.

Beside the tracks you see men walking beside their teams that haul heavy loads of farm products. These build this country, and finance it, although they never saw a stock ticker.

An intelligent lady, old fashioned, with a tall young daughter, new fashioned, came to our waterroom, and said, "I think you are Mr. Brisbane. I have seen your photograph."

You welcome such an intelligent visitor. She quotes Martin Luther, and Goethe, and Schiller. "Du bist immer so du bist." "Thou art always what thou art." She quotes young people of our day, unsuccessfully trying to be something that they are not.

She is a widow, her name is Mrs. Elizabeth Beauchamp, and she lives in Beverly Hills, while her daughter attends the University of Southern California.

The daughter does not quite know what she will do when she leaves the university, teach school perhaps, but she is quite certain that she will NOT marry.

She is mistaken about that.

Sad news from Kern, a little to the left where Nevada joins California. Two of the best Kern drinking places are closed today. A cruel governmental taking out all the fixtures, and the weather, unusually calls for liquid refreshments.

Imagine the indignation of these and gentlemen, breaking the inconvenient chains of marriage and forbidden to break, as they choose, regulations established by constitutional law.

However, other places are open.

In Denver, to the southeast, hundreds of scientists are gathered today. You will learn from a geologist, chemist, and physicist, James Morrison, who is in charge of the Denver Post, known to his friends as "the Colorado Mammoth," always carries on his newspaper the line, "First in the world, the first in the world."

He is delighted to learn from the distinguished Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the New York's American Museum of Natural History, now in Denver, that Colorado has the finest mammoth skeleton in the world.

The Denver Post shows Prof. Osborn with Dr. Walter Granger, Mr. Higgins, head of the Denver museum, and the jaw bone of the mammoth. He could have bitten all three in two at one bite. This mammoth, biggest of the extinct elephant family, was found in Nebraska, but Col. Bonilla says it was undoubtedly on its way to Denver, highly developed, and undoubtedly this. Its full name is Megaceros meridianus Merriamensis.

Indians have been praying steadily for a month, begging the "Great Spirit" to send the salmon come up the river as usual. Something had mysteriously delayed their coming, and starvation threatened the Indians in the coming winter. But the prayers were answered. "Great Spirit" said whatever necessary. The salmon are coming. Now they are rushing up the river, their silver fins flashing. The Indians gather them in thousands at the foot of Kettle Falls.

And the salmon carry the Indians through the cold winter months. The Indians, gathered scientifically prepared in this offer a most important, economical and palatable food for white people.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER FLURRY

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—After shooting an afternoon selling flurry which carried a few issues a point or so under the previous close, the stock market recovered in the last hour today, several prominent issues showing net advances of 1 to 3 points.

The market failed to get within a point or two of the high reached in a morning flurried, however. Stocks up 1 to 3 in the late trading included Allied Chemical, North American International, Western, Coca Products and Air Realty.

The late tone was irregular. The turnover approximated 4,500,000 shares.

Fin. Com. Flays the Welfare Board's Lax System; Probe Is Halted by Vacations

With discovery today that a South Boston bootlegger had a batch of welfare tickets on which he was working, police barred an unsuspected form of racketeering in city aid, and opened an entirely new field of investigation.

This discovery is one of a number of important developments today in the probe of welfare "taking" which the Boston Evening American can first expose.

Other developments included:

BOSTON—Fin. Com. Flays Welfare Board's Lax System; Probe Is Halted by Vacations

New York, Aug. 23 (INS)—Another attempt will be made to "smoke out" Al Smith in behalf of the presidential cause of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate.

Senator Davis I. Walsh of Massachusetts, a leader in the New England campaign, today delivered a message to the effect that he intended to "smoke out" Al Smith on the subject of bootlegging.

While the senator gave a "tag" conference with National Chairman James A. Farley, delivered to discuss the subject, he admitted he intended to "smoke out" Al Smith on the subject of bootlegging.

3 PLANES OFF IN OCEAN HOP

Two planes hopped off today for Oslo, Norway, via Harbor Grace, N. F. And another, occupied by the Flying Family, took off for Europe via St. John, one, manned by the Flying Vikings—Solberg and Peterson—left Boston, via New York, New York, at dawn. Another, flown by Claude A. Lee of Oshkosh, Wis., and John Boehm of Brooklyn, N. Y., left Boston, via New York, New York, at 10:15 a. m. (Boston time).

New York, Aug. 23—Thor Borg and Carl Petersen, Vikings of the air, took off from Floyd Bennett field at 4:41 a. m. (E. D. T.) today, on a projected one-day flight to Oslo, Norway, and three and a half hours later reported by radio that they had passed over Portsmouth, N. H.

The radio message was sent by the plane to the Chatham, Mass., station of the Radio Marine Corp. "Passed Portsmouth about 20 minutes ago, strong head wind," the message read.

Portsmouth is approximately 200 miles from New York. Their plane has a cruising speed of 100 miles an hour, but this evidently was reduced by the heavy load they carried and the strong head winds. At 1:35 P. M. the Viking plane passed over Port Greville, N. H.

The first scheduled stop of Solberg, son of the old Vikings, and Petersen, veteran radio expert, is in Portsmouth, where they are expected to refuel and take off at dawn tomorrow for the north Atlantic crossing.

Reports said that weather conditions were favorable, except for a squall reported today at $53.379 in value.

FIRST PRIMP IN 8 DAYS

MRS. MARSALES

What's the first thing a record-making aviator thinks up when she finally returns to old Mother Earth? Here's the answer. The first thing Mrs. Louise Thaden (seated) and Mrs. Frances Marsalis did after they landed from their eight days in the air was to primp. They just looked in the luxury of baths and powders and perfumes and cosmetics and brushes and combs—all denied them for eight weary days aloft. (I. N. R.)

30 See Man End His Life in City Hospital

In front of 30 patients in a surgical ward of City Hospital, Louis Brown, 31, of Blue Hill Ave., Roxbury, slashed his throat and fell, died this morning, according to police.

Shrieks of patients attracted the night nurse who had stepped out of the ward for a few moments.

The nurse returned to find Brown, who was a patient, lying in a pool of blood.

Doctors were rushed to the ward, but Brown was dead.

According to hospital records, Brown was recently transferred from a Jewish home in the hope that an operation might cure a supposedly incurable disease of the spine.

Other patients told doctors that Brown had apparently been suffering intense pain through the night.

At Brown's Blue Hill Ave. address, Mrs. Fannie Alexander, the landlady, said Brown had several times threatened his life over love for a girl which was not returned.

Brown, collected $1500 two years ago as the result of an auto accident in which his mother was killed. She said he had two brothers and two sisters, one of the latter, A. M. Segal of Revere.

$60,000 LOSS BY FIRE IN MEDFORD

Cabin Cruisers Destroyed as the Flames Sweep Boat Plant, an Old Landmark

Medford square business district was threatened today when fire swept the Baltzer Boat plant in the rear of Riverside Ave., on the Mystic river, destroying two cabin cruisers on the ways. A general alarm was sounded.

The ways, measuring 150 feet, were wrecked, and the flames spreading into the stock room ignited thousands of dollars worth of valuable goods. Dense smoke darkened Medford.

Firemen confined their efforts to saving wooden buildings in the vicinity.

The Baltzer property was once known to the old Lawrence wharf, a Medford landmark. Damage will probably amount to more than $60,000.

HEAD CUT OFF AS AUTOS CRASH

Mrs. William W. Evans, wife of the pastor of the West Brookfield Congregational Church, was instantly killed today when beheaded in a collision of autos at Boston Ave. and Mystic River parkway, on a Medford-Somerville line.

Her husband, who was driving, and J. F. Moran of Lexington, driver of the other car, escaped cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Evans, from the front seat, was hurled through the side window of the car.

Witnesses said the crash of machines was terrific.

Extra Session

A special session of the legislature, it appears now certain, will be called by Governor Ely immediately following the September 20 primaries.

It will be confined to economic matters with special attention to legislation for the relief of cities and towns whose financial affairs are in a bad way owing to the falling off of revenue and the extraordinary demands for welfare relief.

Outside of travel expenses, the primaries will not, it is expected, increase the bill of the tax payers.

Both President Garret, G. Bacon of the Senate and Speaker Everett Saltonstall of the House have pledged themselves to use all their influence to have the members serve without extra compensation.

BOTTLERS GET DOLE; FIN. COM. FLAYS WELFARE LAXITY AND WARNS OF FRAUD PERIL

The officials accepted restitution from welfare fakers, without prosecuting them, thereby compounding a felony.

Mysterious delay in welfare department brings police investigation directly to a standstill. Officials fail to hand over cases for police inquiry. Leading welfare executives on occasion.

City Councilor Kelly to ask Police Commissioner Hultman to investigate welfare "fakers" and get their names in the relief list, and if there was any collusion.

Welfare department asks law department to act against men receiving aid while having three Boston bank accounts.

WALTON-McCune Duane, last week 600 aid recipients at city hall. Threatens to "turn necks" a fakers. City starts paying dole again. Recipient of aid, $120 found in his pockets, and also two bank books. City will sue his estate.

Mayor Duane asks police to investigate all welfare cases. Says auto owners receive aid. Discovery of welfare racket at Boston hotel; a resident of South Boston came by chance.

A spectacular chase of a South Boston youth, starting at city yard, 15 and Columbia rd and ending several blocks distant on Fourth st., preceded the discovery of the fraud.

OFFERS BOTTLERS' CAID
The youth who later gave his name as Joseph Cocciola, 20, of West Sixth st., appeared at the city yard and said he was applying for work as ordered by the welfare department.

He showed the checker a card bearing the name of a man who, police say, is a notorious bootlegger.

"Where's your other card, your identification card?" asked the checker.

The youth showed him the other card.

"This description doesn't fit you," the checker told him. "You're not the man whose name is on this welfare card."

Cocciola ran, the checker after him. The pursuit continued for blocks up 14 st., but after the youth turned into Fourth st., he passed a police squad car containing the troopers James McPhee and Robert Bonn.

McPhee leaped out and captured him.

BON PAY 30 CENTS
At station 22, according to the police, Cocciola said he had obtained the card from the man whose name he bears, was to do the day's work for the latter and later be paid for it.

Investigation by police then showed that the bootlegger had several welfare tickets. On each of these he collects $10 or more a week at the welfare department.

A part of this $10 he pays to men who will go to the city yard and do the required work for him.

Cocciola said he was in get only 30 cents for doing today's work for the welfare racket.

Search for the latter at the address given on the welfare card showed he had moved from there more than two months ago. Police of all divisions were ordered to look for him. Cocciola was released.

The Finance Commission today went on record in an official report as condemning welfare department methods "under which anything is possible."

The report throws the spotlight on all the activities of the department where $10,000,000 of taxpayers' money is being expended this year.

The commission's accusations of inefficiency and waste, provided another sanction for City Hall, which for more than a week has had its daily ration of startling developments in the welfare situation.

The Finance Commission says: "The Finance Commission cannot condemn too strongly the system under which the grants have been made. The widest latitude is left to station clerk and official alike, and almost anything is possible under the system."

The Finance Commission's investigators have not found dishonesty on the part of the employees, but have found a system wide open for fraud and dishonesty.

While the overseers are nominally in control, the commission says, they are really playing second fiddle to the welfare department.

Carthy, who has held his berth since 1918, in turn, is at the mercy of the 50 visitors whose judgment in passing on the merits of welfare cases is final in most instances.

Trust funds are not used strictly as the donors intended, but in some cases are allowed to pile up the burden of the taxpayer and if there was ever a time in the history of the city when the money should be distributed it is now.

The Finance Commission declares that the additional employees given the department are only in proportion of one to three or four requested by the overseers, who, therefore, could not have set up a scientific system had they wished.

WITHOUT INQUIRY
In the past year and at present the paymasters and visitors have had to peddle out cash and food for groceries as fast as human hands could pass it out, without proper investigation and relying for the most part on word of mouth.

The Finance Commission investigators found "Cases where two and three generations in the same families are being aided."

While communities being aided, because the story of how easy it was to get aid was handed from neighbor to neighbor until every family in the district was receiving relief.

Police Commissioner Hultman announced today that he expected to receive late tomorrow from the special division of public aid investigation a list of 600 welfare cases comprising a cross-section of the city.

1500 CASES EXPECTED
He will analyze these, he said, and make a statement later in the week. The special investigating division under Deputy Superintendent George has not yet quite finished the first 500 cases, the police at the various stations throughout the city have virtually completed investigation of the whole 1200 cases turned over to the department by the welfare department.

It was learned today that 2500 cases were expected by the police before this, but these have been mysteriously delayed.

The result of the delay is to hold up the police investigation. Efforts to learn the reason for the delay failed when it was found that leading officials of the welfare department were out of town.

It was revealed, last week, that welfare department officials did not like the publicity being given the police exposures of fraudulent and underpaying cases.

Chairman Simon E. Hecht of the overseers of the public welfare is out of town until Thursday, a reporter was informed. Secretary Walter V. McCarthy of the board, who does the executive work in the department, is on vacation. Chief Visitor John Kelley is also on vacation.

WHY ASK MORE?
The treasurer of the board of overseers, Edward H. Willey, was found at the place of his home in South Boston and he said:

"Why are you calling me? You will have to get your information from Mr. Hecht."

"Mr. Hecht is out of town and I want a spokesman for the welfare department," said the reporter.

"I am very sorry," said Willey, "I cannot give you any information. There was nobody at the department who would issue a report on the South Boston bootlegger, other than to admit he was on the welfare list, and nobody explained the delay in handing more cases to the police for investigation. Employees said Willey was in charge with Chairman Hecht away.

The law department under Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, which has taken several cases into court while the police were still investigating, received another from the welfare department today. This involves a man with three bank accounts. The names of the banks were given to the law department and immediate action is expected.

Councilor Kelly of Dorchester, by his proposed request to the police commissioner for an investigation of how unwelcome cases are being handled, said he is vitally necessary if the whole situation is to be exposed.

Kelly wants the police to find out if there was any collusion between the welfare department visitors and paymasters asking aid to which they are not entitled. This is the investigation that the city council yesterday refused to make, by a vote of 17 to 9.

The Walling morning of 600 recipients of welfare aid.

clients of aid, called by Mayor Patrick J. Duane, overflowed the city council chamber. Duane was in rare form and delivered the more for his caustic remarks and shrew comments.

"This welfare faking isn't like taking candy from a baby," he said. "Taking candy from a baby is sometimes a good thing. But this is stealing crumbs from Lazarus."

He also said: "If I catch one of you taking anything you don't deserve, I'll wring your necks."

CITY WILL SUE
Duane told newspapermen that a man who died last week at Walham Hospital was found to have $1000 in his pockets. He had been receiving $5 a week city aid for nearly two years. He also had two bank books, in addition to the large amount of cash. He was a widower with grown children and the city will try to recover the $500 or $600 paid him.

Mayor Duane also announced he would immediately ask the police chief to begin an investigation of all welfare cases.

"This city paid $175,000 for aid in 1922, and this year is trading out $100,000," the mayor told the gathering in the council chamber. That means a $75 difference in the tax rate.

The money comes from the pockets of your neighbors, the taxpayers, the home-owners. Why, any number of home-owners are losing their houses because they can't pay the taxes.

"This city is paying each needy couple $4 and $1 extra for each child and paying the rent, besides."

"Auto owners have been getting grocery orders. I heard of one man who drove up to a grocery store to buy some corn. He told the store man the price was two cents higher than down the street and he grunted he would drive along to the next store."

Some in the crowd questioned him at his invitation.

"Why don't you give us cash instead of grocery orders?" asked one man.

"Human nature being what it is, the people would use the cash for the movies, autos, radios and what not," retorted Duane.

He then lifted his temporary ban on all dole payments and the crowd filed in to get their checks.

WOMEN FLIERS MISSED BATHS ON FLIGHT

ever we asked for, but it took a long time to get cosmetics and hair pins. When perhaps don't understand that a woman must be made up all the time.

We wanted to be as presentable as possible up there, although we were alone. We wanted lipstick and rouge and cold cream. We got it, finally, but not until the last day. Then the cold cream wasn't what we wanted, because we couldn't spell the name of the kind we use. But what we got was welcome.

With the cosmetic order was a pair of tweezers. These we used to pluck our eyebrows. So you see after coming down from that long grind, our eyebrows aren't shaggy. I missed hairpins terribly.

A woman is always losing her hairpins. Louise didn't mind, because she had short hair, but my hair is long and when I would take off my helmet, the motion of the plane would cause my hairpins to fly all over the place.

HUNDREDS OF LETTERS

If I flew without my helmet, my hair would spread all over my face, and it was uncomfortable to keep the helmet on all the time.

As we flew, we got hundreds of letters from fans asking for our autographs, and we tried to read the letters, but only got through a few. What we missed most were newspapers, and we asked for them, but they were so bulky they weren't sent up.

Our first night was Thursday, during the awful rainstorm. It was foggy then, and all we had to guide us were the red lights of the field. These guided us while circling about, sometimes flying so close to the ground we could see the houses.

FOOD WAS GOOD

Our food was good and there was plenty of it. Toast, chicken, which we ate apart with our hands and with our fingers. You see we didn't have room to spread out a table as we were alone and had to eat in little cups and plates and bowls. Once we got a surprise we never forgot. It was when we got our cream for when we went up, although there may have been no cream.

Mrs. Louise Thodde, who collapsed as the plane was landed, was revived and, refreshed by a hot bath, added the following to her story.

The first couple of nights thrilled us, especially watching the lights of New York and Long Island. But it wasn't long until even watching the lights became boring. The stars in the sky became watches.

It was not a idea how monotoneous that gets, circling, circling, in nowhere and having to go to sleep and get up.

As for myself, I am not going after more endurance records. We are going to the Cleveland air meet and Mr. F. J. Fox, our barber, is going with us.

We are ready now for some fun, some society with other people.

JOHN D. SR. MAY GO TO DAUGHTER FRENCH SUB IN NEAR DISASTER

Paris, Aug. 23 (AP)—The sensational charge that the government was withholding news of a recent war catastrophe involving a war-time French submarine was made by the Socialist Organ is Populaire today.

Guaranteeing the authenticity of his information Le Populaire said the submarine Argo, on a trial trip shortly after its completion at Nantes, plunged to the bottom off the coast of Brittany, 18 hours, unable to rise.

The crew believed they were doomed to die, the paper stated, and the terrifying belief caused the death of one sailor and drove a civilian worker mad.

But later the boat rose safely to the surface.

P. PROTESTS TEDDY'S TRIP

Manila, Aug. 23 (AP)—Criticism of Governor-General Theodore Roosevelt's announced trip to the United States to take part in the Republican presidential campaign was voiced today by several Americans.

Filipino leaders, however, remained uncritical and promised to co-operate plans to expedite a new legislation before Gov. Roosevelt leaves September 14.

"Washington still considers the Governor-Generalship of the Philippines a political plaything," said the Manila Daily Bulletin, American owned newspaper.

Paul A. Meyer, president of the American Chamber of Commerce, said:

"In my opinion, it is a very poor policy to have the chief executive leave after six months in the islands."

"It seems too bad we can't have the chief executive stay long enough to carry out what he started to accomplish," said John R. Wilson, secretary of the chamber.

It is accepted here that Governor Roosevelt is leaving under protest, although he is silent on that point.

Town Folks of Bill Carr in Quandary

Pine Bluff, Ark., Aug. 23 (AP)—Bill Carr's home town is all set to render him a homecoming in honor of his Olympic achievements, but the hasn't come home yet.

The welcoming celebration for the University of Pennsylvania runner, who set a world distance record in the Olympic games, is almost for naught as the players today were a little uneasy because Carr had not yet put in his appearance here.

U. S. BUSINESS GOOD BY 1934, SAYS BABSON

Hallifax, N. S., Aug. 23 (INS)—American business is climbing out of the valley of depression and should be back to normal by 1934, according to Roger W. Babson, Boston statistician, who is visiting here.

Aside from the vast improvement in business sentiment displayed in the last six weeks throughout the United States, Babson gave as a reason for his optimism the fact that business had "gone down" out of all proportion.

MORE GOODS WANTED

"More goods are being consumed now than are being produced," said Babson.

"Like a disease, a depression develops its own antitoxin which cures itself. During the boom period we had just the opposite condition, that of more being produced than was being consumed."

"TARIFFS SILLY"

"Tariffs of all sorts are simply silly," he said. "The thing which would be the best for the United States and Canada in the long run would be reciprocal treaties."

He suggested that the whole matter of tariff between Canada and the United States should be placed in the hands of a small joint commission which would be the final authority for controlling the trade between the two countries.

MAN LURED TO DEATH IN HOTEL

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 22 (AP)—Heavy M. Butler, prominent Mobile real estate man, was found beaten and strangled to death in a hotel room here tonight, and police were seeking two men they said had registered at Johnson and Johnson from Dayton, O.

Officers advanced the theory that Butler had been lured to the hotel on the issue of a business deal.

Robbery was not the motive, police said, because Butler's money was left in his pockets. The body was found by a physician summoned to the room by someone who told him "You will find a man seriously sick."

Woman Admits That She Killed Another

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Nellie Hunter, housekeeper, confessed to Sheriff Herbert E. Egan today that she shot and killed Mrs. Eleanor Henderson, common-law wife of Guy Henderson, at the Henderson home last week.

In her confession she said she buried the body in a shallow grave near Rileyville.

Fear for Sanity of Doomer's Assassin

Pasig, Aug. 23 (AP)—Attorneys for Paul Gonzigoff, indicted President Paul Doomer, filed an appeal with the ministry of justice today stating the Russian's mental state never very stable, had grown worse in prison. Gonzigoff has been condemned to the guillotine.

Eugenists Ruin Ideals of Modern American 'Apollo'

They Find Our Shoulders Lack Strength; See Us as "Desk" Type

New York, Aug. 23 (INS)—The model or rather composite American figure, who was fit to fight for his country in the Great War, is considerably different from the ancient Apollo.

Today's national hero and breadwinner, the ideal male citizen, is of the white collar variety, following some learned profession from behind the desk, showing a capacious paunch and a relatively slim body.

WEAK SHOULDERS

So it appears from the plaster model of a man, representing the average body measurements of 100,000 volunteers of the World War, now being exhibited at the Eugenics Conference Exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History here.

Lacking in the strength of shoulders, he is pre-eminent for visceral magnificence, proving that you cannot expect a civilian who takes up soldiering for national defense to be a model of physical fitness.

Indeed, this is the age of power through work behind the desk and the laboratory bench.

HEREDITY COUNTS

The exhibition in the Education Hall of the Museum in reply, with the latest evidence of the influence of heredity upon human physical and mental characteristics of the most varied sorts. The inclination to commit suicide, tendency toward cancer and many other congenital diseases, genuine and various kinds of insanity are all more or less affected by heredity factors, according to the numerous charts and diagrams, models and statistical tables displayed here.

Dr. June E. Downey of Wyoming University affirmed before the conference that persons who are introverted by temperament have a different type of hand writing from those who are extroverted. The introverted writing is cramped, restrained, perhaps half-hearted. The extroverted writes freely, symmetrically, with bold and flourishing lines.

At the third international congress of eugenics these facts were charted.

Husband and wife of the same age at 30 may expect to live together about 35 years before death part.

If he is five years older than she, their expectation together is 28.3 years. If it is 10 years older, the period is cut to about 18 years.

CHUMK AVERAGES

Poison by asphyxiation is inheritable. If both parents are immune, about 43 per cent of the children are likely to be the same.

But strange to record, if only one parent is immune, 56 per cent of the children are likely to be immune. One parent is immune and the other slightly susceptible.

Three on Trip in Wash Tub

Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 23 (AP)—Three variety artists—two men and a woman—traveled in a wash tub from Cracow to Danzig on a boat. They floated downstream, steering with the aid of sticks, and supported themselves by performing enroute.

Death Penalty on Increase in Russia

Moscow, Aug. 23 (AP)—The death sentence is becoming more frequent in Soviet Russia. A criminal court sentenced a man to death today for wrecking a three-car train by throwing a steel book into the machinery. In another court near Moscow two workers were sentenced to be shot after they confessed to a train to rob the passengers.

Jackie Coogan to Take Drama Course

Santa Clara, Cal., Aug. 23 (AP)—Jackie Coogan, former boy motion picture star, is enrolled as a student at Santa Clara University and is seeking an education for the stage.

Coogan, now 18, registered Monday to major in a four-year drama course.

SHOUGIRL SAYS HUSBAND KILLED COIN DOCTOR

Flowerhead, N. Y., Aug. 23 (INS)—Victor Downs was accused of having murdered "Dr." Frank Tutill, the Long Island coin doctor, in a statement made to Suffolk county authorities today by Mrs. Miri Novak Downs, wife of the accused man and a former Broadway night club hostess.

The body of the reputedly wealthy chipmunk was found in his dilapidated automobile Saturday and an autopsy established the fact that he had been hit on the head with some heavy object and not repeatedly.

In the Riverhead jail, Mrs. Downs broke down completely.

TUTILL RIDDLED

Her husband, she said, lured Tutill to the Downs home, which is situated among the lonely sand dunes near Quogue, L. I. As Tutill entered the bungalow, Downs, dressed in white, searched his clothing for money and then placed the body in Tutill's automobile and towed the car seven miles to the deserted spot where it was found by his associates.

Returning to his house, Downs noticed that two bullet holes had pierced the panelling of the living room. He ripped down the damaged panels and rebuilt the wall.

HUSBAND EX-CONVICT

This was the story which Mrs. Downs told to District Attorney Alexander Blue. She also said her husband is an ex-convict and a former convict. They married in Denver five months ago, both having gone there to obtain divorces.

HITLER IN WAR ON VON PAPEN

Munich, Germany, Aug. 23 (INS)—Adolf Hitler today launched a fight to "do away with" the Junkers government of Chancellor Franz von Papen.

Hitler at his headquarters here issued a bitter statement indicting the government for death sentences passed out to five of his Nazi followers for the murder of a Communist workman.

"The court verdict justifies my reason for stating to enter the bourgeois cabinet," von Papen's name will enter history beset with blood.

"Von Papen will not check the progress of our movement even if he executes thousands of our fighters. We will do away with the Junkers government, founded upon bloody sacrifice."

"Herr von Papen, we are fighting for nationalist Germany's victory and the destruction of Marxists (Socialists and Communists), who are undermining the Fatherland."

King Doesn't Like His Own Voice

London, Aug. 23 (INS)—King George of England has a thorough dislike of the tone of his own voice. During a visit to the British Broadcasting house a record of his own voice was played to him. "Dear me," he remarked, "I must have had a cold."

BOSTON MAN'S SUICIDE FEARED

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP)—Buffalo and Niagara Falls police were searching for Daniel McCarthy, 24 of Boston, Mass., in an effort to prevent a suicide attempt.

The search was started after police received a telegram from McCarthy's parents saying their son had notified them he was going to commit suicide. The telegram gave McCarthy's Buffalo address as 15 Alpine pl. but police have been unable to find it.

The police also were informed that McCarthy recently was discharged from a hospital where he had been confined since last December and a check on all hospitals in Buffalo and Niagara Falls failed to reveal anything.

Exchange Seat Is Sold for $160,000

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—The value of New York Stock Exchange memberships continued to advance today, along with securities prices. Transfer of a seat on the exchange was reported at $160,000, up $10,000 from the preceding transaction. The lowest in recent years, reached last May, was $85,000.

PRICED as low as the lowest yet they're PAINE Quality

FRANKLY we don't know why the manufacturer was willing to sell these suites to us for so little. But his obvious loss is your gain. For we never expect to see furniture of such calibre at such prices, and you are not likely to, either. Besides the dining suites there are 4-piece bedroom suites at $105 and $110 that figure out $26.25 and $27.50 per piece for fine, high-grade cabinet work of the Paine standard. Think of it! But don't think too long. We could obtain only about 30 suites of each of six designs. Needless to say, they are not going to stay here long. Try to get one!

PENNSYLVANIA SALE TAX PLAN UNCERTAIN

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 23 (AP).—Although Pennsylvania law allows tax to raise $12,000,000 for unemployment relief, many business men today were at a loss to say how it would affect them.

The tax is to be one per cent on gross retail sales. But State officials have not explained it as a whole.

Dr. Clyde L. King, secretary of revenue, responsible for the collection, said he had the tax war plan prepared. It first was made in 1929, but was not passed at that time and then returned when sold as a finished scheme. He added that William S. Schuler, attorney general, discussed with him and indicated the plan probably would be carried in court.

It was more than a year ago that King was told that the tax on retail sales would be one per cent on all sales from Sept. 1 to Feb. 28.

Brooklyn Police Face New Murder Puzzle

New York, Aug. 23 (INS).—Brooklyn police were faced with another murder puzzle today when the body of a man was found floating in the East River.

The body was recovered from the river at a point where it had been seen floating for some time. The man was found with a wound in his chest.

LAYING DOWN DOLE LAW

Mayor Duane of Waltham, lecturing recipients of city relief at a meeting today in Waltham City Hall.

He warned that no fraud would be tolerated and told of a man whose death revealed he had more than $1000 in his pockets and two bank accounts, although he received city dole. The city will sue his estate. (Staff photo.)

FOUR HELD IN BRIGHTON RAID

A surprise raid on a Brighton apartment and the arrest of two couples, including Mrs. Mildred N. Richmond, 38, on serious charges, was revealed in Brighton district court today.

Those arrested and arraigned on serious charges were Mrs. Richmond, who resides in Royce rd.; Miss Elizabeth Ryan, 29, of the same address; Frank E. Keating, 45, of Warren st., Allston, and Henry Glavin, 45, of Commonwealth ave., Brighton.

The Royce rd. apartment, occupied by the women, was raided on August 17, about daybreak. It was disclosed by Officers John J. Buckley and George Doherty, following receipt of complaints from neighbors. Hearing was continued by Judge Connelly until August 20, bail being set at $200, except for Miss Ryan, who was held in $100.

Man Gets Ten Days for Using Slug on El

Boston, a public welfare recipient, according to the police, was sentenced to 10 days at Deer Island by Judge Barnes in the East Boston Court on a charge of attempting to put a slug in a Boston Elevated turnstile in the Maverick station.

Elks Hold Outing

The annual joint outing of the Malden, Everett, Wakefield, and Lynn Elks lodges will be held tomorrow afternoon at Pemberton.

SLAYS WOMAN; SHOOTS SELF

New York, Aug. 23 (INS).—Edward Koch, former policeman, was in a critical condition today in a hospital charged with having shot and killed Mrs. Dorothy Newcomb in a crowded Brooklyn street.

His assailant shot Mrs. Newcomb a pretty brunette, as she was about to enter the telephone company where she was employed.

The two had argued for 10 minutes before the woman walked away.

After the man fired several shots into her body he turned the gun on himself and attempted suicide.

OLD PLUTARCH HAD RIGHT IDEA: WHY NOT EXILE DEFEATED CANDIDATES

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

I SUPPOSE IT WAS Plutarch who first wrote the story. Whether it was he who got the story, too, I do not know. My impression is that he was strictly a desk man who worked on other people's material, as opposed to Herodotus, who was the Burton Holmes of his day, and to Thucydides who sent back special dispatches from the front where he was in command. Plutarch just compiled and rewrote.

But, boy, how he did write! The literature of the world is stuffed with his anecdotes, told immutably and, apparently, always with such a useful point to them that they stuck—like Gammer Gurton's needle in Hodge's leather breeches.

One of the most famous of these anecdotes is that one, the resurrection of which in today's papers has brought out on me this unaccustomed rash of scholarship.

It is the one about "the Illustrious Peasant who couldn't risk his three-year-old." Somehow, the capitals make it look like an ear. George Ade fails.

He Sat Pantless in the Dark

Most of Plutarch's fables would lend themselves beautifully to the George Ade style, as follows:

"A Night-school lad from the Suburbs who had been taught that voting was a Noble Privilege, hooped it into Athens one day when the Comic Press was advertising an Ostracism. There were two candidates that the People judged they could worry along without.

There was Themistocles, who was Smooth. He won a Big Navy men and had five victories in the Late Unpleasantness. He had a good Eloquent voice and used it much. He advocated pensions for Third Cousins of world war veterans, 25 per cent Income Taxes for all Business Bandits who made over $1,750.00 a year, and Free Beer. He opened that a Balanced Budget did not matter as long as it was in the red, and the civil service. He was being puffed through the Wringer up in Albany but the home-town folks wouldn't stand it with Flowers—at he ever was home. Careful statistics named Xenophon calculated that Themistocles cost the Voter 85 drachmas per annum more than they had paid for George Washington.

The other candidate for the Parthenon was named Aristides. He was a Vagabond and talked Acrologically. He could suppress a snicker with the idea spread. In the Long Winter Evenings he sat out his pants and sat in the dark. His public policies were the same. He was As an Expenditure for all purposes. He carried his pants in a bag, raising the price of Slacks to 10 cents and leaving out the pocket.

"He did that," said banks. Insurance Companies and Trusts who had a Profit, to running expenses, but for Plain Folks he considered the Poor House a magnificent institution. When it came to the Royal he studied the laws of the Church. He voted and the Intemperance Reform. His record was Spotless and he was No reason why he should not win a Walk.

There's a Moral to the Tale

He nearly walked red his Tongue, therefore, when the Illustrious Aristides asked him to write his own Monograph, Aristides, on the outer shell. "How come?" he inquired in the purest Attic. "He I not given you an honest Administration? Have I not saved you Plenty? As for the Champion of the Soda Fountain, of the old-fashioned Stereograph with Thrilling Views of the Grand Canyon, and of the Blue Book." "Do I not believe in the Direct Primary, and Free Trade with Russia, and all the other Inexpensive Luxuries?" "How come, then, you Choose to tie the Can to Me and return the Lid who believes in the Soda Glass?"

The Night-school boy, who knew his Manners, replied: "Everything you say is in Brail McCoy. But I got no darned sick of hearing you call The Great Engineer." So Aristides crumpled his John Hancock on the outer's late Residence and subsequently in a Epitaph that was looking for a Drunk who had been returned by prohibition.

And the Moral of this piece of Chatter, little ones, is that in a Democracy it is safe to Do the People Good."

Curious enough, that is about all Aristides is remembered for, that people hated him and The Just. The reason for this effusion is that a Princeton archaeologist believes that he has found two of the identical tablets—ostraca shells originally, but later probably hunkered or some other composition—on which the Athenian citizens had to record their choice between Themistocles and Aristides on that celebrated occasion.

It may seem a curious back-handed way of doing things, according to our notions, but it had its points. Instead of choosing one out of two possible evils, leaving both in the picture, the Athenians were given the opportunity of getting rid of at least one in a thorough-going and summary fashion. The loser had to leave the city for 10 years and by the time he came back he was as forgotten as John W. Davis.

Why Not Vote a Banishment?

That left the survivor free to run things as he pleased without being worried by a constant barrage of exceptions, caveats, viewings-with-alarm, personal innuendoes, jitters and loud wails, all of them tending to give the public night-mares and cold sweats at the thought the wrong person had been elected.

Whereas, if the party of the second part was banished to Persia for 10 years, he need only do as the Persians did, and everybody was happy—except possibly the Persians.

I propose, therefore, Mr. Speaker, that the constitution be amended in time for the November elections, to allow us to cast our votes in process of Ostracism, as follows:

Mr. Hoover vs. Mr. Roosevelt.
Mr. Curtis vs. Mr. Garner.
Mr. Seabury vs. Mr. Walker.
Mr. Wayne Wheeler vs. Mr. Bingham.
Mr. Burah vs. Mr. Spooner.
Mr. Ely vs. Mr. Youngman.
Mr. Sinclair Lewis vs. Mr. Dreiser.
Miss Garbo vs. Miss Dietrichs.
Mr. Clark Gable vs. Mr. Gary Cooper.
Mrs. Ella Boole vs. Miss Texas Guinan.
You get the idea? Not whom we shall be better off with. But whom we shall be better off without!

I foresee a great peace descending on our beloved land. No more strife, no more "statements," no more sand in the gears, no more saboteurs, no more house divided against itself. Let us, for all our pride in our democratic methods, take a leaf out of the books of a people who were democrats 2400 hundred years ago. The Greeks had a word for it!

MEDFORD WOMEN BAR MEN IN TAX WAR

Cambridge to Suspend 15 Playground Instructors

PLAN TO FIGHT HIGHER TAX RATE ALONE

Meeting Tonight for Women Only to Discuss March on State House

Medford women, organized into an army of protest against a $540 tax rate increase, will hold their third meeting tonight with a "Women Only" sign on the front door and a policeman on guard to keep "mere man" at a distance.

The women have various organizations through which they are raising money for the fight. They are now in the State House to review the tax rate. It will be held at 6 p.m. at the State House. Bobby Lehnert, 8, was given money by his mother to buy shoe polish and, incidentally, an ice cream cone, and set out with his pet Spitz dog, Beauty, from their home, 65 Winthrop st., Charlestown. The first store they visited had ice cream but no shoe polish. Bobby and Beauty were looking for another store, became lost and were picked up in Cambridge, miles from home, eight hours later. But when they got home they had the shoe polish all right for mother, as Bobby shows you. (Staff photo.)

DRASTIC CUT IS REQUESTED BY RUSSELL

Mayor Says Action Necessary in Order to Provide for City's Needy

Steps for the drastic curtailment of all recreational activities on Cambridge playgrounds and for the consequent suspension of 15 supervisors were taken today by Jeremiah J. Coughlin, chairman of the park board, at the request of Mayor Russell.

The mayor asked that all recreational supervisors, except that affecting the lives and safety of the children, be dispensed with at once because of the tremendous demand for welfare aid and the importance of keeping the maintenance division of the street department on full employment.

The actual suspensions, however, have not taken place because the board has been unable to get a majority for a meeting and Stephen H. Mahoney, head of the recreation department, is on vacation. Attempts are being made to reach Mahoney in order that the suspensions may be made at once.

SEIZED IN DOLE RACKET

At the women, you know, who have to stretch all to do the work of 10 times as many. It is far more important for women to interest themselves in a movement of this kind than to be sitting around playing bridge and just talking about the tax rate increase and the end of the world.

At last night's meeting, witnesses saw a man, Joseph Cocciola, seized in a racket. He was a member of the racket and was being escorted by police officers. He was a member of the racket and was being escorted by police officers.

BIGELOW'S SHUN SOCIETY LIFE

Hunting for an apartment where they can settle down and be quiet is the chief occupation at present of Stephen Schier Bigelow, Boston society clubman and his bride, the former Mary McDevitt, daughter of a former sheriff.

"I have not seen mother yet," he does not know when we will go to Cohasset to see her," Bigelow told reporters today.

"Mother" is Mrs. Joseph Bigelow, Boston matron who has a summer home at Cohasset. She and the rest of Bigelow's family opposed his marriage last year. The young couple are now reconciled with their families, but the elder Bigelow has yet to meet her daughter-in-law.

VALENTINE

An Exciting Story of Modern Love

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Millie tried to comfort her. "Val, pet, don't cry. It won't be for long."

CHAPTER 2

SURELY NO CHILD ever had a more romantic beginning than Val. No child of the braver knew more about makeup and the subtlety of color and line. Watching the beautiful Millie dress was a liberal education.

No gambler's daughter ever jumped from silk and lace to gingham and patches, and back again, with greater nonchalance than the daughter of Millie McFarlane. Nothing surprised her, changes came so quickly in Millie's heliotrope-scented, carelessly waiting.

Millie was Val's God, her ideal of everything that was graceful and lovely. Millie was the East Princess and Jim Atkinson was the Prince for whom they had been waiting.

After Jim came there was a long period of comfort and security. Val almost forgot the paper castles of colored shagreen and ruffled landladies who were with one hand, Val's downy top-knot with the other.

Millie never had any misgivings about Val. There was a time, just at first, that she had worried. That was when she realized how completely, how fully, she could forget the little girl.

It frightened her sometimes, this dark, swift tide of her passionate love for Jim, sweeping her into deep, uncharted waters, making her forget everything that had mattered before. Even her baby, her own warm, sweet flesh and blood.

BIBLE STUDENT HELD IN HOLOUP

Printing at a man in Court as today, Samuel Cohen, 45 West End, pawnbroker, caused the arrest of Oliver Webster, 32, also of the West End, as one of two men who assaulted him in his Mercantile pawnshop last December.

Webster, not only denied the assault, but told police he was studying for the ministry.

Cohen insisted to Patrolman Patrick Dolan of Milk st. division that Webster was the man and the arrest followed.

Asked where he was pursuing his studies for the ministry, Webster replied he did not attend any school but studied in libraries, police said.

Rally at Faneuil Hall Eerks Wild Enthusiasm for Entire Party Ticket

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY
How Speaker John N. Garner of Texas, Democratic vice-presidential candidate "struck" the House committee on education to side with the infamous Smith-Towner bill at the request of Massachusetts Democratic members of Congress was revealed by Congressman John W. McCormack at a wildly enthusiastic meeting of Democratic candidates for office and city, town and ward committee members in Faneuil Hall.

The meeting called primarily by Chairman Joseph A. Maynard of the State Committee for organization and registration purposes, developed into a Democratic love feast with Governor Elbridge Gerry Curley leading off with a vigorous handclasp.

MAYOR GIVES $500

The mayor received an ovation when he publicly pledged a donation to the state mayoralty for registration purposes amounting to $500.

Curley, who had been heavily ridiculed by the G. O. P. during the Presidential campaign, was asked to stand up and be counted. He was met with a roar of applause.

He declared that Mills' attack on Gov. Roosevelt was made to cloak the short-comings and mistakes of the administration of President Hoover.

GARNER EULOGIZED

The eulogies of Speaker Garner were started by Congressman John J. Davis of East Boston. Douglass related that after he was elected to Congress last year, he was introduced to the present speaker by the late Congressman James A. Gallivan of South Boston.

That man, John N. Garner of Texas, is one of the ablest men and one of the most liberal spirits in the House. Follow his leadership and you will not go astray.

"Since then," Douglass declared, "I found Gallivan's words to be true."

As a result of conferences with the speaker on the mid-Smith-Towner bill, McCormack stated that Garner said word out that he would show a guarantee on the committee on education filed by Democrats who were opposed to the bill.

"The committee was attacked against the Iniquitous bill, and that is the reason that you have not been disturbed with it since," he stated.

Two Alarms Are Sounded and the Loss Is Estimated at More Than $10,000

The fire of Wednesday afternoon, which started in a tenement at 12 Hecla st., in the Dorchester section of the city, today did considerable damage to the building, and caused the flight of 12 families. The fire, which broke out at about 2:30 p. m., was first reported by a boy who was playing in the yard. He called to his mother, who in turn called to the neighbors. Two alarms were sounded, and the fire department arrived within five minutes. The fire was quickly controlled, but the damage was considerable. The loss is estimated at more than $10,000. The fire was caused by a gas stove which had been left burning unattended. The fire department is now investigating the cause of the fire.

Connors Plans to Clean Out Cambridge City Hall

Edward J. (Push 'Em Up) Connors, who was abruptly divorced from his job as a Cambridge city councillor, today announced a week ago that he was a candidate for the city council. He has political ambitions, today fired the opening shot in his campaign for a seat in the State Legislature. And what a shot it was. It rained right through the center of the political field of the University City and burst on the front steps of City Hall.

Connors has already secured the endorsement of the police, and today he joined them with the announcement that he intended to bring the removal of Mayor Little and M. Russell, members of the City Council, to a vote. Connors, who is a well-known figure in the city, has a long record of public service. He has been a member of the City Council for several years, and has been known for his strong opinions and his willingness to stand up for what he believes is right. Today, he announced that he was running for the City Council, and that he intended to bring the removal of Mayor Little and M. Russell to a vote. This announcement has caused a great deal of excitement in the city, and many people are watching to see what will happen next.

2 CAPTURED IN LOTTERY RAID

What police declare is one of the largest distributing centers for pool and lottery tickets was raided in Matt. at Charlestown today by Sgt. McKing of headquarters. A warrant issued by Judge S. J. O'Brien in Charlestown court.

William J. Coughlin, 48, of Harvard st., Charlestown, alleged owner of the store in which the raid took place, was arrested on a charge of promoting a lottery. John W. Libby, 32, of Eaton st., Charlestown, was also arrested charged with being in possession of lottery tickets. Each was held in $500 bail. The raid given from information turned over to Capt. John N. Anderson and was carried out as exclusively by headquarters officers. Special Officers Benjamin Glone and Robert McGowan kept the counter and according to report, seized more than 50 pool tickets.

Young Fugitive, Hungry, Tired, Gives Self Up

An 18-year-old boy walked up to Patrolman William Lee in the North End today, swallowed hard a couple of times, and blurted out:

"I'm Harry Fagin. My home is in Nyack, N. Y., and I escaped from reform school there several months ago. I've been in Boston three days without any place to sleep, without anything to eat and without a wash. I'm tired and hungry and I want to go back to the reform school."

At the Hanover station he was pointed with a good man, and a man to wait up. Then he hid the same story in Judge Good in minutes. Court and arrangements were made to send him back to the reform school, tomorrow. He is expected to be sent to the reform school tomorrow.

SHIP IS RAMMED BY SWORDFISH

The story of a vindictive swordfish that ripped a hole in the schooner Mary D'Eon on Georges Bank was told today by the crew of the schooner, which is now in Boston, while all hands alternated at two pumps.

A harpoon had missed his coil with his 20-foot spear, and the swordfish, instead of jumping, charged a head and "went straight for the schooner," the crew said.

The sword pierced the oaken hull and ripped a jagged hole through which the water poured, despite efforts of the crew to stop it. They were forced to head for home, bumping day and night. THE LITTLE BRIDE WHO GAVE HER MOTHER-IN-LAW A COOKING LESSON

THEY had been married only a month and 'his' mother was coming to dinner for the first time. Sue felt she ought to tremble at this ordeal as brides are supposed to do—but she didn't. She was confident and unafraid.

Promptly at six, Bob walked in with his mother. Promptly at 6:15, Sue set the meal on the table. It looked delicious. Roast chicken and baked potatoes—peas as green as they came from the garden—combination salad, and a golden brown pie...

Over the dishes, Bob's mother grew confidential. "Sue," she said, "that dinner was priceless—really the best meal I've tasted in months. How did you manage to do it at this stage of the game?"

"There," said Sue, "is the answer," pointing to her new electric range. "You just can't go wrong when you cook electrically. It's too easy... and it gives the food a flavor that no other cooking can equal."

It's simple to be a star cook if you "cook by wire." For the modern electric range is in all the flavors that naturally exist in wholesome food. That's exactly the reason why electrically cooked meals taste so much better.

STOCKS PUSH UP, BUT MEET RESISTANCE

New York, Aug. 23—Stocks bulged up again in Wall St. to the tune of million-share-an-hour trading for a time today, but industrialists encountered considerable resistance around the top levels of the recovery, reached a fortnight

Apparent inability of the industrials to follow the rails and utilities decisively through the new high ground dampened the bullish enthusiasm some, and after many issues had got up 1½ to 5 points during the morning, reacted as the pace of trading slackened.

Resistance in the form of an afternoon selling flurry was absorbed before the close. Some issues had been carried below the previous close, but the market managed to achieve recovery, and a number of leaders finished with net gains of one to 3 points.

The early highs, however, were not attained. Allied Chemical, North American International Harvester, Air Reduction and Corn Products figured in the late rally with gains of 2 in 3 points. The lowwater was about 4,500,000 shares.

Extreme advances of 2 in 3 points appeared in such leaders as Case, International Harvester, American Tobacco and American Extensive gains of about 5 points appeared in Western Union and Liggett & Myers B. North American rose 2 and held up fairly well. U. S. Steel lost a modest gain.

Mostly men, very active, Kennedy Associates, American Smelting and Refining Co., Nickel advancing about a point, General Electric, General Motors and Standard of Oil, rose a point in active trading in the early afternoon.

Continued strength of bonds and firmness of some of the commodities helped the bull cause a share.

Fresh news of a character in influence the market was again strong, although some usually well-informed quarters insisted that September would see a substantial weakening in steel production, substantial enough to qualify much of Saturday's freight carloadings figures were swamped with keen interest. Loadings should increase from early August up to a seasonal peak in October. The report for the week ended August 13 showed a gain which looked as though the seasonal movement was starting. What the report for the week ended August 20 will show remains to be seen.

Goldish activity in coppers was predicated on gossip of higher prices. Foreign buying was said to be a little better. Lead prices were advanced 1-16 of a cent a pound and bar silver was again firm. Zinc was unchanged. North American reflected the announcement that bank loans of some $2

Economist Swoons At World Tempest

It's about time that American listens to her economists: the cloistered men, forgotten and ignored, who first thought of colored pin maps. HEARST PAPERS ADVOCATE

- 1—The five billion dollar loan to relieve unemployment and put billions of dollars into immediate circulation.
- 2—Adoption of 5 per cent sales tax and reduction in income taxes, releasing income to finance industry.
- 3—Immediate modification of the Volstead act, permitting light wines and beers, reviving industry and employment, providing government income, ending racketeering and restoring American personal liberty.

New England Waking Up

Industry Coming to Life

Things are looking up, all over New England. From every section come reports of enlivened business conditions, better than seasonal efforts, which give confidence and encouragement.

Read some of them, and see the reasons for optimism:

"The Fitchburg Weaving Company, Fitchburg, Mass., is now operating at practically full capacity."
"The Madison Woollen Company, of Madison, Me., is operating day and night, and has increased its payroll from $1200 to $7000 per week."
"The American Woollen Company, Dover-Foxcroft, Me., is running twenty-four hours a day."
"The Queen City Cotton Company, Burlington, Vt., which has been closed for the summer, has resumed operations, employing 400."
"The Pilgrim Mills, Fall River, have resumed operations, after being closed twelve weeks, and are now employing 200. The Berkshire Fine Spinning Associates has reopened after a shutdown, employing 300 to start."

"The Holyoke Silk Hosiery Company, Holyoke, Mass., has recalled all its regular employees to full-time work."

What is true of the textiles is true of the shoe industry, for example:

"The Consett Shoe Company, Augusta, Me., has received a large order which will keep its regular force employed full time for three months."
"In Rochester, N. H., the number of employees in the shoe factories increased 232 the past month, the local textile plants are operating at approximately capacity and more people are employed in the city than at any time since 1929."

Similar reports come from the great rubber, candy and stove industries in several sections of New England.

Business is looking up, all right, and the period is gone when the punter could say, "O, yeah; looking up from the fat of its back."

It's on its feet. And going in the right direction.

Help for Insurance Co.'s

Pay Up, or State Cancels Your Auto Permit

Morgan T. Ryan, the State Registrar of Motor Vehicles, suspended or revoked the licenses of 1932 motorists last week.

Of that number 1287 were because of insurance cancellations. There you have the striking example of what Chester I. Campbell has repeatedly called for our attention—that the State of Massachusetts is serving as clerk and bookkeeper for the insurance companies whose clients, for one reason or another, are unable to fulfill their contracts for compulsory automobile liability insurance. But there is more to it than clerk and bookkeeper.

Under the law which has been erected, the insurance company merely certifies that your insurance has lapsed and, presto, the State does the rest. It snaps up your license quicker than you can say Jack Robinson.

The State has thus placed itself in the position of being the enforcer of a contract between two private parties, the insurance company on one hand and the motorist on the other. If you want your license back, and you do, you must restore your contract with the company, or with some other company. Else you are deprived of the use of the automobile which you own and of the highway which you help to maintain.

In justice to the insurance companies, it ought to be said that they have not been overwhelmingly eager for this entire system of automobile insurance law which is on the books in Massachusetts. In the long run their standing in public estimation will be firm if they were required to deal independently with their clients than to have their clients harbor the suspicion that the State is on the side of the insurance companies. This condition ought to be changed, by the State itself.

Don't Kill Yourself

You May Lose Your Insurance

Suicides are providing a problem for life insurance companies which, according to gossip in those quarters, may lead to a general agreement among them to insert a clause in policies refusing payment to the beneficiaries of policy-holders who take their own lives—provided the States will pass the necessary enabling laws.

As expressed by the vice-president of a noted insurance company:

"Too many policy-holders who would never think of profiting through the crime of arson have felt that suicide was justified, feeling apparently that self-effacement was expiation."

"Self-destruction, when life insurance is involved and the suicide clause is no longer operative, takes funds from other policy-holders for payment of the beneficiary."

"It is a deliberate avowal of responsibilities which the suicide cannot or will not discharge in other ways."

It seems probable that refusal to pay the insurance of a suicide would save the lives of many useful persons who needlessly would away with themselves in a moment of temporary despondency.

The head of a household may, and sometimes does, commit suicide. The few methods he can use of relieving the distress of his family.

Yet a few weeks or months more of "hanging on" might have solved his problems, and given him many more years of employment and happiness.

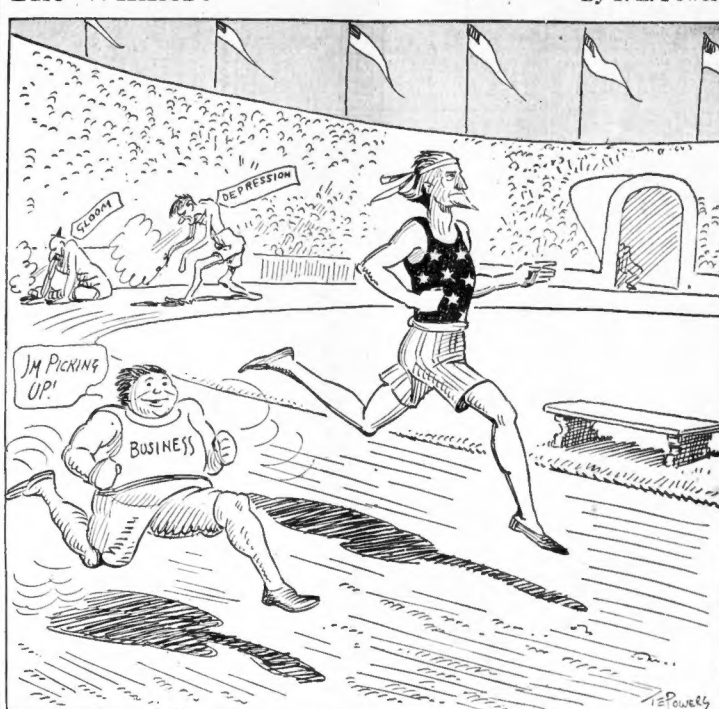

Insurance companies might well petition the States for the right to make this change in the policies they issue.

It would not only benefit them but would probably have a marked effect in checking the suicide rate for the nation.

A man with insurance is dead, generally speaking, a more valuable citizen than one without.

Any measure that will keep him alive and useful, and save his family from the stigma that attaches to self-destruction, is certainly worth taking.

The Winner?

New York Day by Day

Clannish Hotels

New York, Aug. 23—Manhattan hotels, like great ocean liners, attract distinct clannishities. In other days, the Knickerbocker, Astor and Claridge were the hub of the theatrical whirl. Today, it has moved to the St. Morris and the Essex on Central Park South.

The moving picture colony—actors, directors and screenwriters from Hollywood—put up mostly at the Warwick on Sixth ave. The Ritz long has been the favored inn of London bankers and European titles, the preponderance of the monied making the word "Ritz" a symbol of swank.

The Plaza and the Vanderbilts are rendezvous of the Southern aristocracy. The spacious old Murray Hill houses Philadelphia blue-bloods and the elderly retired from all sections. The Roosevelt is a middle and southwest center, and folk from China, especially Shanghai, gather at the Biltmore.

For many years, visiting ball players have lodged at the Ansonia on upper Broadway. Big manufacturers, regiments at the Commodore. The Pennsylvania is, for some reason, a "hide-away" for authors in the throes of creative effort. Ring Lardner and Octavus Roy Cohen have turned out stories there.

The Breckers is the now-and-then home of Monique Glass and Sinclair Lewis. Will H. Hays maintains an apartment at the new Waldorf. The Douglas Fairbanks, Ethel Barrymore and Ina Claire are regulars at the Algonquin. And that pathetic new spirit is known as "The Hotel Where Nobody Stays."

One of Broadway's senseless sayings: "I don't know from nothing."

A boy-about-town, edgy from a prolonged whack at the bottle, dropped in—of all places—a movie, finding apparently that self-effacement was expiation.

"Self-destruction, when life insurance is involved and the suicide clause is no longer operative, takes funds from other policy-holders for payment of the beneficiary."

will have news of vast importance to you. You will know me when I approach and say "The Princess is speaking!" It is rather discouraging to realize one even looks like some fool who would fall for such a gag!

Yet, I hear that some good chuckles conjuring up an idiotic situation. I have pictured myself, all flopped up and sporting the lapel insignia, stammering into the hotel at the proper time and behold in the twinkling of expectancy I'm Cobb, Floyd Gibbons, Harry Silver, Gene Crowley and others—all wearing white carnations.

All honor to such a myrral! Whatever suffering it was worth while, for it made me rich for them and for all who knew them.

BUT FOR EVERY SMILING MARTYR THERE ARE 10,000 SMILING FLING ONES!

DO THEY, TOO, DESERVE HONOR?

Is sacrifice "noble" if it results in bitter, empty lives—or selfish, weak lives?

Should miserable martyrs be encouraged?

I'm wondering. Thinking of a woman I know—

Don't Be a Martyr

THERE HAVE BEEN many martyrs in human history—brave souls who gave their lives for others, who endured hardships and sacrifice, and even the final agony with a smile on their faces.

Yet, I hear that some good chuckles conjuring up an idiotic situation. I have pictured myself, all flopped up and sporting the lapel insignia, stammering into the hotel at the proper time and behold in the twinkling of expectancy I'm Cobb, Floyd Gibbons, Harry Silver, Gene Crowley and others—all wearing white carnations.

All honor to such a myrral! Whatever suffering it was worth while, for it made me rich for them and for all who knew them.

BUT FOR EVERY SMILING MARTYR THERE ARE 10,000 SMILING FLING ONES!

DO THEY, TOO, DESERVE HONOR?

Is sacrifice "noble" if it results in bitter, empty lives—or selfish, weak lives?

Should miserable martyrs be encouraged?

I'm wondering. Thinking of a woman I know—

Just Folks

A Beggar's Philosophy

There came to me a beggar-man one pleasant summer day. Despite his utter poverty he whistled on his way.

And this is what he said to me: "I've all the wealth I need. There's always someone kind enough my hungry mouth to feed. I follow many a winding trail and do beneath the trees. And whether winds blow high or low I do just as I please. I never worry 'neath duty's lash nor bend my back to toil. My friends are of the woods and hills and sky and stream and soil."

"I'm free to go where I will, I've met all human ties. I've run away from grief and care; behind me worry lies. I have no wish for lament here, I'll be no slave to dress. For there is none upon the earth I'm anxious to impress. I face the world with heartily! No treacherous debts I know. Since none will trust a beggar blithe, there's not a man I owe. But all the songbirds sang to me and every plant and vine And every star that gazed the sky and every stream are mine."

At first thought I this beggar-man has found the way to live. He reaps contentment from the joys the things of Nature give. But then I heard my younger brother call and as he ran to me I knew I wouldn't trade his smiles a care-free man to be. For all the trees and all the flowers and all the sunny skies I knew I wouldn't trade away the twinkle in his eyes. I gave the beggar-man a dime, and as he went his way I thanked him for reminding me how rich I am today.

THE HOOVER STRATAGEMS

are having no end of embarrassment in the prohibition planks of the two platforms, and there is more of the grotesque than of the convincing in the gyrations of these distressed people. Never has an issue been more clearly drawn. Never have people of rudimentary intelligence understood it so thoroughly. And that makes the very embarrassing to Mr. Hoover in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Illinois. The strategy is now out. The Hoover managers, under his leadership, have gone too far gracefully to renounce their act in their own convention. They cannot possibly say to the people of these States that they favor modification and repeal—for that was the issue when Ogden Mills led the fight for Mr. Hoover in the convention which resulted in a victory for the prohibitionists which has arrayed Bishop Cannon with them along with the rest of the Anti-Saloon League.

What, then, can be done? The only thing. The people must be persuaded, if possible, that the Democrats did not mean what they said in their platform when, as a party, they took their stand for repeal and for modification as soon as the voters have given them a mandate at the polls.

November Vote
Real Dry Test

The move to array the wets with the dries in these important States came when Hoover organs began to insist that the declaration for "immediate" modification must be modified under the present session of Congress. Of course, the party in 1932 could not pledge men elected in 1930.

But the platform adopted with so much enthusiasm, and by such an overwhelming majority in the Democratic convention, applies to the policy of the party, provided the people give it a mandate at the polls in November.

No one was impressed by this "strategy."

A Correspondent
Hoover's Intimate

Now we have a new tank Mark Sullivan is a correspondent, not just a "correspondent." He is one of the most intimate friends and advisors of Mr. Hoover. Almost any Monday morning we may read in the Washington items that Mr. Sullivan was one of the workmen and guests at Bryan.

And these political cloncles at the fishing camp, where there is more fishing for votes than for fish, the strategy is discussed. And when Mr. Sullivan writes as a correspondent everyone knows that he is following out the strategy determined upon in a Hoover political conference.

Thus, when he writes for the purpose of persuading the anti-prohibitionists in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts that the Democrats have no thought of carrying out their platform pledge to repeal, we know the policy of the campaign. He dare not write that Mr. Hoover will follow the course outlined in the Democratic platform, for that would alienate the Anti-Saloon League, on which so much reliance is placed.

Democrats Plan to Fulfill Pledge

Not only is there a party pledge most solemnly and deliberately made, but Mr. Roosevelt has accepted his own party platform and pledged.

"From this hour, he said, 'the 18th Amendment is doomed.' Any political party so plainly pledged to a policy that would fail to carry it out after receiving a clear mandate from the people at the polls, would go down to crushing defeat in the very next election.

But there is no disposition to renounce the pledge.

For more than a year there has been an amazing rising against the prohibition laws. This is as true in the South and West as in the North. It has affected members of Congress from the first two sections as much as from the last. These men, close to government, knowing the money and the appalling cost of enforcement that does not enforce, resenting the taxation immunity accorded one of the most lucrative industries in the land, have been convinced that the "noble experiment" has failed.

But they are politicians and hesitate, without a clear mandate from the voters, to act in accordance with their convictions. Anyone familiar with the gossip of the cloak rooms knows this is true.

If the Democrats win on this issue they have the justification, so many of them seek.

Issue Seems Clear Cut

But with the issue clear cut, under the platform the re-election of Mr. Hoover would be a plain indication that the country still wants the 18th Amendment and the Volstead Act.

And the politician who is at heart against prohibition, would again take to their tents and vote against modification or repeal.

Under our form of government, they would be justified in refusing to vote a change. For the people would have spoken against a change, and with the politician the voice of the voter is the voice of God.

That is the reason Bishop Cannon and the head of the Anti-Saloon League in New York is out for Mr. Hoover.

They know that if Mr. Hoover is elected on the platform as dictated, is re-elected, the noble experiment is safe for a long while yet.

"Leave It to Hoover"—They Did!

Are the anti-prohibitionists less intelligent in the exercise of the privilege of citizenship than the people who came to this country four years ago, but there were extenuating circumstances.

In New York, for example, the vote was taken in whispers that Mr. Hoover, a compromise, was to be investigated was just his way of getting out of a bad situation.

(To Hoover) they whispered, with a wink. And they did. The result was a compromise. The findings of the investigation at the instance of the White House.

Wets Put Up Strong Battle

When this year was decided to have the issue definitely made in the Republican Convention. The anti-prohibitionists put up a magnificent fight; and, but for the active interference of Mr. Hoover, the anti-prohibitionists would have been written and adopted.

Mr. Hoover, however, and the Administration plank which "Nicholas Murray Butler calls 'dishonest' they get a mandate from the people, we know the policy of the campaign. He dare not write that Mr. Hoover will follow the course outlined in the Democratic platform, for that would alienate the Anti-Saloon League, on which so much reliance is placed.

Democrats Plan to Fulfill Pledge

Not only is there a party pledge most solemnly and deliberately made, but Mr. Roosevelt has accepted his own party platform and pledged.

"From this hour, he said, 'the 18th Amendment is doomed.' Any political party so plainly
